The Moscow Institute of Electronics and Mathematics (MIEM HSE) together with the Consortium of the National Research Nuclear University MEPhI and JSC ENPO SPELS, will hold the International Moscow IEEE-workshop (MWENT-2022). The Workshop devoted to the issues of electronics development and its integration into the modern network engineering technologies and also modern achievements in the field of creation of control and communication systems.

Number in calendar of IEEE: 55238

The Aim of the Workshop is to provide an international forum for discussion of recent scientific advances in the electronic industry.

Key objectives of the Workshop:

1. Testing of electronic devices.
2. Electronic devices for aerospace purposes.
3. Networks and telecommunications.

The Workshop will include plenary and regular sessions, round-table discussions and master-classes.

All participants of the Workshop should register at mwent.hse.ru

All accepted papers will be published in Workshop Proceedings, registered in IEEE Xplore and indexed in scientific databases. The participants will be provided with the electronic version of the proceedings.

Original articles should include well-founded scientific results and prepared according to the IEEE requirements available at the Workshop website. The papers submitted on time and prepared in correct format will be reviewed by the program committee as well as by the IEEE experts.

Important dates:

05 March 2022 – registration and paper submission deadline;

21 March 2022 – notification on acceptance;

27 April 2022 – deadline for the registration fee payment;

09–11 June 2022 – the Workshop.

Registration fee:

8500 RUB – for IEEE members;

9500 RUB – for students and postgraduate students;

13500 RUB – for all other scientific speakers;

27000 RUB - for commercial participants.

Registration fee includes publication in the Workshop proceedings, coffee-breaks and high dinner.
